The World Deserves Witnesses

Successful Leica campaign moves into the next chapter

The Leica Witnesses Photographers Call, 30th June 2022. “The World Deserves Witnesses” – in 2021, Leica adopted this motto to launch a successful brand campaign, celebrating the art of photography as a witness to the world. With the likes of Joel Meyerowitz, Steve McCurry and Elliott Erwitt, the greats of photography bore testimony to our world, while emerging talents and distinguished photojournalists also contributed their share. The particularity of “The World Deserves Witnesses” campaign is that Leica does not commission any pieces, but curates the existing work of photographers who are eye-witnesses of our times. Leica is now calling photographers of all ages, using any equipment to become witnesses, and to submit their work centred around the themes “Joy” and “Hope”. The deadline for submissions is 30th September 2022.

Photographers have always played a decisive role in capturing the world’s small and large stories. Their images have immortalised the fleeting moments. With its multi-award-winning brand campaign, “The World Deserves Witnesses”, Leica has created a monument acknowledging this fact. Over 30 photographers from a diversity of backgrounds took part in the first three waves; their works are part of the print and online campaigns, as well as the video manifesto, which has been viewed over 30 million times to date. “The World Deserves Witnesses” campaign recently received its 10th international award, with a second bronze Lion at the Cannes Lions International Festival of Creativity, in the “Photography Craft” category and now moves into the next chapter: With the Leica Witnesses Photographers Call, Leica is engaging further with the image-makers community of the world and inviting photographers of all ages using any equipment to submit their pictures and to share their stories. The call is open between 30th June and 30th September 2022, focusing on the themes of “Joy” and “Hope”.
